Obama pleads with Congress for gun control

■ 'I haven't forgotten those kids'

By Alan Fram
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama pressed Congress on Thursday not to forget the heart-break of the Newtown elementary school massacre and “get squishy” on tightened gun laws, though some lawmakers in his own Democratic Party remain a tough sell on an approaching Senate vote to expand purchasers’ background checks.

“Shame on us if we’ve forgotten,” Obama said at the White House, standing amid 21 mothers who have lost children to shootings. “I haven’t forgotten those kids.”

More than three months after 20 first-graders and six staffers were killed in Newtown, Conn., Obama urged the nation to pressure lawmakers to back what he called the best chance in over a decade to tame firearms violence.

At the same time, gun control groups were staging a “Day to Demand Action” with more than 100 rallies and other events planned from Connecticut to California. This was on top of a $12 million TV ad campaign financed by New York City Mayor Michael Bloomberg that has been pressuring senators in 13 states to tighten background-check rules.

But if political momentum was building after the nightmarish December shootings, it has flagged as the Senate prepares to debate gun restrictions next month. Thanks to widespread Republican resistance and a wariness by moderate Democrats from Southern and Western states — including six who are facing re-election next year — a proposed assault weapons ban seems doomed and efforts to broaden background

More Easter egg hunts coming up on Saturday

Gleaner staff

The celebration of the Easter season continues, and several more activities have been planned locally focusing on a symbol of the celebration — the Easter egg.

The Sportsmen's Club at Robards will have its annual hunt starting at noon on Saturday.

Hunts will be held for the following age groups: 1-2 years; 3-5 years; 6-8 years and 9-11 years. Punch and cookies will be served.

Other egg hunts planned locally:

■ New Hope Baptist Church: Noon, Saturday, 851 Kimsey Lane, on the front lawn. All children from the community, 12 years and under, are invited.

■ Redbanks nursing home: 10:30 a.m. Saturday, 5514 U.S. 60-East. The public is invited.

■ First Missionary Baptist Church: 10 a.m. Saturday, Central Park in downtown Henderson, for ages 3-12.

■ Community Easter Egg Hunt, Corydon:

10 a.m. Saturday, featuring 51,000 eggs, Crawford Field baseball park hosted by Corydon Church Alliance.

■ Poole Missionary Baptist Church: 11 a.m. Saturday, located on U.S. 41-Alternate. Activities include egg hunt, magic show and lunch. The public is invited.

■ Advance Baptist Church: 11 a.m. Saturday, 10069 Kentucky 1078 North in Baskett.

■ Corydon Church Alliance: second-annual Easter egg hunt at 10 a.m. Saturday at Crawford Field baseball park in Corydon. The hunt will be divided into age groups and 51,000 eggs will be hidden.

■ Finley Baptist Church: 3800 U.S. 41-Alternate, 1 p.m. Saturday. Everyone is invited.

■ Water's Edge Church: Following 11 a.m. Easter Sunday services below Denton Shelter in Atkinson Park. Registration information: www.watersedgechurch.org.

■ St. Johns Lodge No. 4 Easter Egg Hunt: 3 p.m. Sunday, at South Middle School. Ages 1-11 welcome.

Survey: Farmers to plant most corn since '36

By David Pitt
Associated Press

DES MOINES, Iowa — Farmers intend to plant 97.3 million acres of corn this year, the most since 1936, the USDA's spring planting survey said Thursday.

The survey said the 2013 corn planting forecast is up slightly from last year's 97.2 million acres.

Corn remains profitable, as prices are holding strong at around $7 per bushel after last year's severe drought left the grain in short supply. In a separate report, the USDA said corn stocks fell 10 percent from a year ago to 5.40 billion bushels.

Record corn acreage is expected in Arizona, Idaho, Minnesota, Nevada, North Dakota, and Oregon. And Iowa, the nation's leading corn producer, will plant an estimated 14.2 million acres in corn, the same as last year.

But the states that suffered significantly during last year's drought — the worst since the 1950s — expect to plant slightly less corn acreage: Illinois' acres are down 5 percent to 12.2 million; Minnesota fell 3 percent to 9 million acres; and Nebraska corn acres are down 1 percent at 9.9 million acres.

The report said farmers plan to plant 77.1 million acres in soybeans, a small decline from 2012's 77.2

Local animal shelter among man's beneficiaries

By Dylan Lovan
Associated Press

LOUISVILLE — A mild-mannered western Kentucky farmer who never turned away a stray cat left a portion of his estate to every county-run animal shelter in the state.

County officials received checks earlier this month for $1,432.47 from a man they never met, a Muhlenberg County dairy farmer named Bland Hardison, who died in 2008 at age 86.

Hardison had set up in his will a gift for the state's animal shelters, said his widow, Jonell Hardison. In total, Hardison set aside nearly $1 million in donations to various charities upon his death, and the estate took years to settle.

The Humane Society of Henderson County was among those facilities that received $1,432.47 from the Muhlenberg County man's estate. Shelter operations manager Joshua Cromer said the gift was unrestricted and has been put in the general fund. The money will go toward the day-to-day care of the animals.

Jonell Hardison said Wednesday that her husband loved his pets and even the strays that would wander onto the farm.

County jobless rate higher than year ago

Gleaner staff with AP

Henderson County remains among the minority of Kentucky counties where the unemployment rate is higher than a year ago, according to the Kentucky Office of Employment and Training.

The jobless rate here was 7.9 percent in February, down from 8.0 percent in January but up from 7.5 percent in February 2012.

Union County posted the 10th-lowest unemployment rate in the state at 7.2 percent in February, down from 7.4 percent in January and 8.0 percent in February 2012.

Webster County's rate was 7.3 percent in February, down from 7.9 percent the previous month and 7.5 percent one year earlier.

The state is reporting that jobless rates improved in 91 counties in February. But the news wasn't all good.

The Kentucky Office of Employment and Training reported

Thursday that unemployment rates went unchanged in three counties and worsened in 26.

Woodford County had the lowest jobless rate at 5.9 percent. Fayette, Franklin, Madison, Oldham and Shelby counties all had jobless rates of between 6.5 and 6.9 percent.

Magoffin County had the highest jobless rate at 18.9 percent. Leslie County was at 17.3 percent. Letcher and Harlan counties reported rates of 16.9 percent and 16.3 percent respectively.

Fulton County in far western Kentucky reported a 15.9 percent jobless rate. It was the only non-Appalachian county among those in the Top 10 for unemployment.

Deaths

Raymond Paul Thompson

Raymond Paul Thompson, 86, Henderson, passed away at 8:24 a.m. Thursday, March 28, 2013, at Methodist Hospital.

He was born in Chicago, but grew up around Madisonville. Raymond left high school at the young age of 17 “with his mother’s permission” and joined the Navy during World War II. He became a Seabee and served in Okinawa. In August of 1947, he married the love of his life, Lillian Farthing. Raymond had retired from Alcoa Aluminum after 24 years and had also worked as a miner for Peabody Coal Co. Every five years he would receive 10 weeks of vacation and although they took vacations each summer, they would look forward to traveling during those special times. Raymond enjoyed gardening, especially growing tomatoes and beautiful flowers.

Raymond was born in 1927 to Amos Thompson and Lena Osborne Thompson.

In addition to his parents, he was preceded in death by his loving wife of 64 years, Lillian Farthing Thompson.

Survivors include one daughter, Sheila Callen and her husband, Steve, of Madisonville; one son, Gary Thompson of Henderson; four grandchildren, Brennon Thompson and his wife, Gina, of Fairfax, Va., Amy Lopez of Evansville, Chris Callen and his wife, April, of Henderson and Rebecca Allen and her husband, James, of Coventry, England; and five great-grandchildren, Nolan, Bethanie, Hayden, Zoe and Mitchell.

A private family memorial service will be held Monday at Henderson Church of Christ. Gary Puryear will officiate.

Arrangements entrusted to Tapp Funeral Home, A Life Celebration Home.

Online condolences may be made at www.tappfh.com.

Jean Ann Reed Chandler

Jean Ann Reed Chandler, 82, Poole, died Tuesday, March 26, 2013, at Methodist Hospital in Henderson.

She was a Homemaker and member of Shady Grove General Baptist Church in Poole. She was a longtime volunteer for St. Anthony’s Hospice and member of the Poole Homemakers Club.

She was preceded in death by her twin brother, Jim Reed, and another brother, Frank Reed Jr.

Survivors include her husband of 60 years, John Chandler; two daughters, Debra Chandler Morin of Jamestown, N.C., and Paula Chandler Gray and her husband, Larry, of Poole; one sister, Marinetta Farris of Aiken, S.C.; four grandchildren, LeeAnn Yarbrough, Rachel Beauchamp, Stephanie Hagedorn and Wendy Ackerman; six great-grandchildren, Chandler and Landon Yarbrough, Joey and Skyler Beauchamp, and Jillian and Jordan Hagedorn; several nieces and nephews.

Services will be at 11 a.m. today at Townsend Funeral Home in Dixon. The Rev. Dean Esarey will officiate. Burial will be in Shady Grove Cemetery in Poole.

Friends may call after 8 a.m. today at the funeral home.

Pallbearers will be Stephen Reed, Donald Chandler, Mark Chandler, Capt. Scotty Yarbrough, Brian Hagedorn, Larry Ackerman and Doug Beauchamp.

Memorial contributions can be made to Shady Grove General Baptist Church, 8980 U.S. 41-Alternate North, Sebree, KY 42455 or St. Anthony’s Hospice, 2410 S. Green St., Henderson, KY 42420.

Two injured in separate U.S. 41-North accidents

Gleaner staff

Two people were injured Wednesday afternoon in two separate accidents on U.S. 41-North.

The Henderson Police Department said the first accident occurred around 4:15 p.m. at Racetrack Road when Mary Shoulders, 73, Evansville, was turning left onto U.S. 41 and did so in the path of a vehicle driven by Claude Williams Jr., 53, 3940 Stone McClellan Road.

Shoulders was transported to St. Mary’s Medical Center in Evansville.

Information about her condition was unavailable.

The second collision occurred around 4:45 p.m. at the intersection of U.S. 41 and Walnut Lane.

City police said the accident occurred when Rosanne Hudson, 68, Evansville, was traveling in the turn lane and apparently didn’t see Tracey Schnarr Richmond, age unavailable, 2244 Zion Road, turning left onto U.S. 41.

Hudson was transported to Methodist Hospital where she was treated and released.

Corrections

In a story Thursday about the United Mine Workers planning a protest outside the West Virginia offices of Patriot Coal Corp., The Associated Press incorrectly attributed a comment to Peabody Energy.

The story should have stated that Patriot Coal said it is the victim of “unforeseen events” including the global financial crisis, new environmental regulations and a reduction in metallurgical coal prices.

Girl found, two sought after home abduction

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES – More than 20 Los Angeles detectives are hunting for two men who grabbed a 10-year-old girl from her bedroom before dawn and held her for nearly 12 hours before dropping her off at a hospital near her San Fernando Valley home, police said.

LAPD Cmdr. Andrew Smith asked for the public’s help in finding the men Thursday, saying they believe strangers took the girl to several locations in different cars.

The girl was found with cuts and bruises on her face and told police she did not know the men, Smith said.

She had been awake for much of her ordeal and has been resting and is going to be re-interviewed by detectives in the next few hours, he said. She was recovering at home Thursday afternoon.

In the meantime, police are canvassing the area’s prolific number of surveillance cameras, checking local registered sex offenders, and digging into any possible clues related to the girl’s family, acquaintances and internet contacts.

While parents should be cautious, there are no other serial kidnappings in Los Angeles and such kidnappings are exceedingly rare in the United States.

“Right now we’re looking at this as an abduction, a stranger abduction, one of those things that’s very, very rare in this country but does happen,” Smith said.

Police said one of the men was about 18 years old but released no description of the other.

At the hospital where she was being treated, the girl told investigators the men held her for nine or 10 hours at an abandoned house near her home, Hayes said.

Police believe two vehicles were involved in the abduction and officers have recovered one of them, Hayes said. Investigators have cordoned off several crime scenes including houses and a storage facility in the investigation and manhunt.

“We have a 10-year-old girl that’s been traumatized here. She was forcibly taken from her home,” Hayes said. “If these individuals are brazen enough to do that, I’m putting all the resources I have to make sure they don’t do it again.”

The girl’s parents reported her missing just before 4 a.m. More than 11 hours later, someone who recognized her from media reports spotted her outside a Starbucks and summoned police officers.

Stolen-vehicle chase ends in Henderson

Gleaner staff

A vehicle pursuit that began in Webster County Thursday evening ended at Marywood Drive and U.S. 41 in Henderson.

The chase by Henderson County Sheriff’s Department personnel ended in an arrest, according to Sheriff Ed Brady.

The vehicle being chased by police had been reported stolen.

Henderson police did not participate in the pursuit, but did stop traffic at a few ramps and intersections to protect motorists, said HPD Officer Jennifer Richmond.

No other details were available at this time.

Briefs

Soldier from Philpot, Ky., killed in Afghanistan

Sgt. Michael C. Cable

LOUISVILLE — The Department of Defense says a Fort Campbell soldier who was a western Kentucky native has been killed in Afghanistan.

The soldier was identified Thursday as 25-year-old Sgt. Michael C. Cable of Philpot, a fire support specialist.

The department says Cable died Wednesday from injuries sustained when his unit was attacked by enemy forces in Shinwar District, Nangar har Province, Afghanistan.

Cable was assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 327th Infantry, 1st Brigade Combat Team, 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell. He had joined the Army in 2007.

His awards include one Bronze Star Medal (posthumous), one Purple Heart (posthumous) and the Army Good Conduct Medal.

Cable is survived by his parents, Raymond L. Johnston, Sr., and Vickie M. Johnston, both of Philpot, and his brother, Raymond L. Johnston, Jr.

Wildflower event, walking tours are coming up here

The annual Wildflower Extravaganza at Audubon State Park has been planned for April 6 with programs for all ages.

Three hikes at 9 a.m., 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. will take hikers into the forest to learn about vibrant flora.

The 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. hikes start at the front porch of the museum and the focus will be on traditional uses of native wildflowers.

The 1 p.m. hike is a bit more challenging and participants will identify as many wildflowers as possible.

A noon program for children ages 3-5 also will be offered.

The Kids Wildflower Scavenger Hunt will start at the museum back porch, and during the 30-minute program participants will learn about shapes, colors and local flowers along the easy paved trail.

For information call Julie McDonald at 826-2247 or juliea.mcdonald@ky.gov.

For another opportunity to get outside to walk on April 6, The Depot Community Room will resume its walking tours of downtown Henderson on April 6.

The downtown tours start at 10 a.m. at The Depot on Water Street on the first Saturday of the month from April to November, weather permitting.

The tours are free.

For information about the one-hour tour, call 830-9707 or visit www.hendersondepot.org.

SNIPZ bake sale set for Saturday

A new Henderson animal group will host a pre-Easter bake sale on Saturday.

SNIPZ — or Spay Neuter Initiative Partners of Zion (United Church of Christ) — will sponsor the sale from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the church fellowship hall, 437 First St.

“We’ve really got some gorgeous decorated cupcakes and cakes,” said SNIPZ co-founder Sue Ellen Payne, including bunny cakes just in time for Easter.

The sale will also feature a variety of other baked goods, including cookies and muffins.

Proceeds from the sale will help pay for low-cost spaying and neutering for Henderson cats and dogs.

For more information, call 212-0925.

Power outage affects 700 customers in Niagara

Some 716 customers of Kenergy Corp. were without power early Thursday afternoon because of an outage in the Niagara area of eastern Henderson County.

The outage began around 1 p.m., and power was restored within an hour after crews repaired a transformer in which an electrical jumper had broken.

Chip and Clip Clinic is Saturday

A pet microchipping and nail clipping clinic sponsored by a local animal rescue group will take place Saturday in Henderson.

Pay It Forward Animal Welfare Network will conduct the Chip and Clip Clinic from 9 to 11 a.m. at Ma’s Doggy Daycare and Grooming, 728 Second St.

Microchips will be $20 each, including registration, and nail clipping will be $5, PIF President Robin Dance said.

Upper Delaware Road closed through Tuesday

Upper Delaware Road will be closed to through traffic between Kentucky 416 and Middle Delaware Road through Tuesday, according to Henderson County Road Engineer Bill Hubiak.

The closure will allow the extension of a large box culvert located “very close to the intersection with Middle Delaware Road,” Hubiak said. “People can drive all the way through except for that last little section.”

Jackson Purchase rate hike request is tied to Big Rivers

PADUCAH — The Jackson Purchase Energy Corporation says it will ask the Public Service Commission for a rate increase.

According to The Paducah Sun, the western Kentucky power distributor said the hike will increase average residential power bills by $21.30 per month. The company said commercial and industrial rates would rise 21 percent. The anticipated hikes would take effect in August.

Jackson Purchase officials said an expected increase of nearly $11 million in the wholesale price of electricity is behind the request. The wholesale increase would come from Big Rivers Energy Corp., which also supplies electricity to Kenergy Corp. and Meade County Rural Electric Cooperative.

The producer has filed a $75.5 million rate increase request with the PCS, citing the loss of its largest industrial customer, Century Aluminum in Hawesville.

Jackson Purchase officials say they have intervened in the case to represent their members and make sure Big Rivers is doing everything it can to hold down costs.

Indiana blast suspect charged in conspiracy to kill witness

By Charles Wilson
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — An Indianapolis man facing trial in a house explosion that killed two people, John Dion Longworth, formerly of Henderson, and his wife Jennifer, and damaged or destroyed dozens of homes was charged Thursday with plotting to have a witness in the case killed.

Marion County Prosecutor Terry Curry announced Mark Leonard had been charged with one count of conspiracy to commit murder during a news conference in downtown Indianapolis.

Curry said Leonard tried to arrange to have the witness killed for a payment of $15,000. Curry said Leonard also offered a $5,000 bonus if the killing was made to look like a suicide and if the killer could force the witness to first call 911 and recant statements about the explosion.

Leonard, girlfriend Monserrate Shirley and brother Bob Leonard are awaiting trial in the Nov. 10 blast that killed a teacher and her husband, and left 33 homes in the Richmond Hill subdivision so damaged that they had to be demolished.

Investigators say the trio intentionally created a gas explosion in Shirley’s home in hopes of collecting insurance money. A microwave set to start on a timer sparked the explosion in Shirley’s gas-filled home after a gas fireplace valve and a gas line regulator in the house were removed.

The Longworths died after the explosion ignited another explosion and resulting fire at their house.

All three defendants face murder, arson and conspiracy charges. Shirley also is charged with insurance fraud.

Curry said in February he would see life without parole for Shirley and the Leonardards because a jury was unlikely to choose the death penalty.

Holy Name wins regional Governor’s Cup

Lobbyists spend $4.2 million first two months of year

The Associated Press

FRANKFORT — The Legislative Ethics Commission is reporting that $4.2 million was spent on lobbying in Frankfort in January and February.

That was about 10 percent more than the $3.8 million spent during the same period two years ago.

The Ethics Commission

reported Thursday that Altria Client Services was the biggest spender, racking up more than $85,000 lobbying on legislation regarding taxes on tobacco products. Century

Aluminum of Kentucky spent nearly $83,000 lobbying for a bill that would have allowed large industrial companies to purchase electricity at cheaper rates.

Petraeus just too valuable to be on shelf

It’s time for former military commander and CIA director David Petraeus to return to public life. His experience and proven abilities are too valuable to waste. Petraeus made his first public speech Tuesday night since resigning as the nation’s top spy in November, after revelations of an extramarital affair with his biographer.

David Petraeus

His speech, at the University of Southern California’s annual ROTC dinner, was booked a year earlier. The audience included not only the cadets but members of the active military and the speaker’s wife, Holly Petraeus, who carved out her own career in public service by trying to protect young soldiers and their families from the assorted scam artists that prey on them. David Petraeus is credited with rescuing and reversing the slowly failing U.S. military missions in Afghanistan and Iraq. He’s the architect of an overhaul of U.S. counterinsurgency strategy, a body of expertise that the military may have to draw on again, given the deteriorating situation in much of the Mideast and North Africa.

Surely the Obama administration has a place for Petraeus as a senior military and national security adviser. Last September’s killings of U.S. Ambassador J. Christopher Stevens and three other Americans in Benghazi, Libya, show that we need warrior-diplomats, especially as radical Islamic groups modeled on al-Qaida have become increasingly aggressive in Africa. And if retired Army Gen. Eric Shinseki chooses to step down as secretary of the Department of Veterans Affairs, there will be a need for a tough, take-charge administrator to galvanize that sluggish bureaucracy and clear up a backlog of 600,000 claims. National Public Radio says veterans wait an average of 273 days to receive the benefits they have earned.

Down the road, there is no reason why Petraeus couldn’t return to the intelligence community or even serve as secretary of defense. We have had public servants, including a commander in chief, come back from worse sins.

The now-retired general opened his return to the public with a graceful apology and deep regrets for causing “such pain for my family, friends and supporters.”

What goes on in Petraeus’ family is personal business. Otherwise, apology accepted.

Both genders lax in retirement plans

Periodically, studies come out that say women are worse at planning for retirement than men. They outlive men, on average, and tend to put away less for retirement, so they end up poorer. The studies are pumped out with a frightening degree of regularity by financial institutions and think tanks. But I’ve started to ask: Is it really true that women are worse off in retirement?

The latest report, prepared by the nonprofit Transamerica Center for Retirement Studies — funded by Transamerica Life Insurance Co. and its affiliates — looks at women only. It finds that about a half of female baby boomers have “no retirement strategy,” and more than half either expect to work after age 65 or simply do not plan to retire. The gist of the study is that this is terrible and that women need to plan better for retirement.

The Transamerica study also reports that most boomer women are so focused on paying off consumer debt and covering current bills — for rent, utilities, food, etc. -- that only 29 percent make saving for retirement their top financial priority. Because this survey was based on interviews with only women, you might logically conclude that men are doing a better job. Are they?

BONNIE ERBE

According to a 2012 survey of working men and women conducted by the nonprofit Employee Benefit Research Institute (EBRI): “In general, men and women are statistically equally likely to say they are very confident about the financial aspects of retirement. However, men are more likely than women to feel very confident about having enough money to live comfortably throughout their retirement years and having enough money to take care of medical expenses.”

One difference to note here is the EBRI survey also reports women are more likely to refer to Social Security as an income stream in retirement than men.

I may be a cynic, but I’m much more likely to believe results of a survey released by a nonprofit think tank that isn’t trying to sell anything to anyone than I am from a center sponsored by a corporation that’s trying to sell product.

From the survey, I would gather male retirees are slightly better off financially than females. The fact that men rely more on their own savings than government programs proves they’ve done a better job of setting money aside. But the differences are slight, not oceanic.

In reality, most American men and women don’t save enough for a comfortable retirement and both should be doing more overall. The survey notes, “More than half of workers (60 percent) report they and/or their spouses have less than $25,000 in total savings and investments (excluding their home and defined benefit plans) including 30 percent who have less than $1,000.” That is downright scary.

Classes on financial planning should be part of a high school curriculum, so young people learn that they need to start saving for retirement as soon as they start working. Girls and boys need to understand that if a household partner goes in and out of the workforce (as many women do when they have children), then they are significantly more likely to be poor in retirement.

More Americans are working beyond the traditional retirement age because they need the money. Some may view that as a negative, but I view it in a positive light. With life expectancies growing, the prospect of retiring at 65 and thereafter doing nothing, or playing a little golf or cards, is not pretty. Getting out and circulating in the real world has its benefits — but not if that work is scrubbing floors. If it’s working as a retail clerk or waitressing, for example, versus poverty, then work beyond 65 is not that bad. Unfortunately, poverty strikes in old age in a gender-neutral fashion.

New Yorkers getting healthy, like it or not

Out of concern for the health of the poor, New York City plans to jack up the price of cigarettes and cigarillos. The rich are still free to smoke themselves into an early grave.

Mayor Michael “He Knows What’s Best For You” Bloomberg sent legislation to the city council that would raise the price of cigarettes and cigarillos to $10.50 a pack, the highest in the nation. Some stores were selling cigarettes at $14.50 a pack, according to the New York Post.

The minimum wage in New York state is $7.25 an hour, meaning the working poor will have to work really, really hard for their smokes, or, an increasing choice for many, buy them on the black market. By one estimate, 60 percent of the cigarettes sold in the city are smuggled in from low-cost states.

The price increase is unlikely to hurt the fat cats who think nothing of paying $178 for a box of 25 Cohiba Corona cigars.

The city council already has banned flavored

DALE McFEATTERS

tobaccos, both cigarettes and smokeless, on the grounds they have special appeal to the young. The council banned herb and spice flavorings, “including strawberry, grape, orange, clove, cinnamon, pineapple, vanilla, coconut, licorice, cocoa, chocolate, cherry or coffee.”

We take a fairly libertarian view on these matters, but if you need heavy lashings of cinnamon and pineapple to get the smoke into your lungs, you really should pick another vice. And you might get both lung cancer and diabetes.

The mayor is fresh off an ill-fated effort to ban sugary drinks to go in cups larger than 16 ounces in order to combat obesity. A patron thirsty enough and with a free hand could order two 16-ounce drinks, but the mayor figures the extra hassle would act as a disincentive.

Again, this is aimed at the poor. Rarely in the offices of your better hedge funds do you see partners walking the mahogany-lined halls with a 16-ounce Slurpee in either hand.

Prohibition was another attempt at looking after the health of the poor and working class, whether they wanted it looked after or not. With many males still in uniform, Congress outlawed beer, wine and whiskey.

It was beer, the preferred drink of the working man, that suffered most. Breweries and beer barrels took up a lot of space and were easy to spot. Besides, footage of revenue agents sledgehammering beer kegs made for good newsreels.

Bootleggers delivered genuine whiskey directly to the doors of the wealthy, who could then develop cirrhosis in relative peace.

The poor had to contend with beverages that may or may not have contained battery acid, zinc and formaldehyde with hints of dead rodents. There were undoubted public-health benefits — my great-uncle’s health no doubt benefited mightily from the exercise he got having to walk around to the back door of his favorite saloon — but it also engendered a massive disrespect for the law.

During the gas crisis of the ’70s, social engineers worried that the poor could only afford the huge gas-guzzlers being dumped on the used-car market when their previous, more well-to-do owners bought zippy little econoboxes.

But it was all for the good health of the poor because they couldn’t afford to drive very far or very fast, and if they did have an accident they had the protection of a big, heavy car.

Protecting the poor from themselves is a thankless task. Literally. They never say thank you, so don’t hold your breath, Mr. Mayor. Or at least don’t hold it very long, because not breathing is not good for your health.

Student loan rate bump on horizon

By Philip Elliott
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Incoming college freshmen could end up paying $5,000 more for the same student loans than their older siblings have if Congress doesn't stop interest rates from doubling.

Sound familiar? The same warnings came last year. But now the presidential election is over and mandatory budget cuts are taking place, making a deal to avert a doubling of interest rates much more elusive before a July 1 deadline.

“What is definitely clear, this time around, there doesn't seem to be as much outcry,” said Justin Draeger, president of the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators. “We're advising our members to tell students that the interest rates are going to double on new student loans, to 6.8 percent.”

That rate hike only hits students taking out new subsidized loans. Students with outstanding subsidized loans are not expected to see their loan rates increase unless they take out a new subsidized Stafford loan. Students' nonsubsidized loans are not expected to change, nor are loans taken from commercial lenders.

The difference between 3.4 percent and 6.8 percent interest rates is a $6 billion tab for taxpayers.

Last year, with the presidential and congressional elections looming, students got a one-year reprieve on the doubling of interest rates. That expires July 1.

‘Ebel Evil’ combative, trouble from day one

By Colleen Slevin and P. Solomon Banda

DENVER — Behind bars, he was known as “Ebel Evil.” Within a day of arriving at his first permanent prison, Evan Spencer Ebel, the suspect in last week's slaying of Colorado's prisons chief, got into a fight. Six months after that he told a female guard “that he would kill her if he ever saw her on the streets, and that he would make her beg for her life,” according to prison records released Thursday.

That was one of 28 different violations he racked up behind bars, most of which was spent in solitary confinement. When Ebel was released Jan. 28 after serving his sentence — with a swastika tattooed on his stomach and the word “Hate” on one of his hands — prisons officials warned he had a high chance of re-offending.

Two months later, Ebel died in a shootout with Texas authorities. The gun he used was the same one that killed prison chief Tom Clements on March 19.

On Thursday, the woman who authorities believe gave Ebel his pistol, Stevie Marie Vigil, 22, appeared in court on charges of illegally giving a convicted felon a firearm. Her cousin told The Associated Press that Vigil had known Ebel since elementary school.

“I think he just intimidated her,” Victor Baca said, describing Vigil as a nursing student who hated guns.

Vigil had been spending time with Ebel since his release.

The details on Ebel's eight years behind bars come from his prison record, which was released under an open records request. It shows that Ebel was a member of the 211 Crew, a white supremacist prison gang. The prisons system twice tried to get him out of solitary confinement by enrolling him in special programs designed to help offenders.

Both times, Ebel was removed from the program because of disciplinary problems and sent back to solitary. He was released directly from solitary confinement onto the streets.

Boston mayor won't seek re-election

BOSTON — Boston Mayor Thomas Menino, struggling to keep his emotions in check, told well-wishers gathered at historic Faneuil Hall on Thursday that he won't seek re-election to an unprecedented sixth term after nearly two decades in office.

Menino, who used a cane to walk to the podium, has had persistent health problems including a six-week hospital stay last year to treat a respiratory infection and a compression fracture in his spine. Menino also was diagnosed with Type 2 diabetes.

But the city's longest serving mayor told the crowd that he is on the mend. Still, he said, it's not enough to maintain the pace that has become his trademark.

“I'm back to a mayor's schedule, but not a Menino schedule,” he said. “Spending so much time in the neighborhoods gives me energy. ... It may not be the only way to lead Boston, but it's the only way for me.”

Menino spoke for about 12 minutes and received a three-minute standing ovation.

OKLAHOMA

HIV test urged for 7K dental patients

TULSA — Health officials said Thursday that thousands of patients of an Oklahoma oral surgeon should undergo testing for HIV and hepatitis after officials looking into the source of a patient's viruses discovered the dentist's instruments weren't being cleaned properly.

The Oklahoma Board of Dentistry said Thursday that state and county health inspectors went to

Dr. W. Scott Harrington's practice after a patient with no other known risk factors tested positive for both hepatitis C and the virus that causes AIDS.

Inspectors found multiple sterilization issues at Harrington's offices, including cross-contamination of instruments and the use of a separate, rusty, set of instruments for patients who were known to carry infectious diseases, according to a complaint.

Harrington voluntarily closed his practices in Tulsa and suburban Owasso and is cooperating with investigators, said Kaitlin Snider, a spokeswoman for the Tulsa Health Department. He faces a hearing April 19 and could lose his license.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

People want to prep for climate change

WASHINGTON — A new national survey says 82 percent of Americans want to prepare now for rising seas and stronger storms from climate change. But most are unwilling to spend the money to keep the beach where it is.

The poll by Stanford University found that only 1 in 3 people favored the government spending millions to construct big sea walls, replenish beaches or pay people to leave the coast.

The options the majority preferred were making sure new buildings were stronger and reducing future coastal development.

Three in 5 people want those who are directly affected by rising seas to pay for protection, not the entire American public.

Survey director Jon Krosnick said Americans seem fatalistic about global warming.

SOUTH KOREA

Stealth bombers join military drills

SEOUL — In a show of force following weeks of North Korean bluster, the U.S. on Thursday took the unprecedented step of announcing that two of its nuclear-capable B-2 bombers joined joint military drills with South Korea, dropping dummy munitions on an island range.

The announcement is likely to further enrage Pyongyang, which has already issued a flood of ominous statements to highlight displeasure over the drills and U.N. sanctions over its nuclear test last month.

It was unclear whether America's stealth bombers were used in past annual drills with South Korea, but this is the first time the military has announced their use.

UNITED NATIONS

North Korea, Iran block arms treaty

UNITED NATIONS — Iran, North Korea and Syria blocked adoption of a U.N. treaty that for the first time would regulate the multibillion-dollar international arms trade. An agreement required agreement by all 193 U.N. member states. But other countries refused to let the treaty die.

In an unexpected twist, Mexico proposed that the conference go ahead and adopt the treaty Thursday without the support of the three countries, saying there was no definition of “consensus.” Several countries supported the idea, but the Russian delegation objected and called the proposal “a manipulation of consensus.”

Kenya said “the will of the overwhelming majority is clear” and that a letter will be sent to Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon with a draft resolution asking the U.N. chief to bring the treaty before the General Assembly for adoption as soon as possible.

U.N. OKs offensive action in Congo

UNITED NATIONS — The U.N. Security Council authorized a new “intervention brigade” for Congo on Thursday with an unprecedented mandate to take military action against rebel groups to help bring peace to the country's conflict-wracked east.

The resolution, which the council adopted unanimously, gives the brigade a mandate to carry out offensive operations alone or with Congolese army troops to neutralize and disarm armed groups.

The intervention brigade is unprecedented in U.N. peacekeeping because of its offensive mandate.

SOUTH AFRICA

Runner's bail eased; he could compete

PRETORIA — Oscar Pistorius could compete at this year's world championships after a South African judge eased his bail restrictions and ruled Thursday that the athlete, who faces a murder trial for the shooting death of his girlfriend, can travel overseas to run.

The international athletics body said that if 26-year-old Pistorius qualifies, it had no objections to him running.

Pistorius' agent told The Associated Press soon after the ruling that the world championships in Moscow in August could be a possibility if the double-amputee runner wanted to return to the track on his carbon fiber blades.

BEIRUT — Mortar shells crashed into an outdoor cafe at Damascus University on Thursday, killing at least 10 students in the deadliest of a rising number of mortar attacks in the heart of the Syrian capital.

The strikes have escalated as rebels fighting to topple President Bashar Assad try to enter the city, terrifying civilians whose support the opposition needs to advance its cause.

It was unclear who fired the rounds. The government blamed “terrorists,” its blanket term for those fighting Assad's regime. Anti-regime activists accused the regime of staging the attack to turn civilians against the rebels.

Mortar strikes on Damascus are relatively new in Syria's crisis. The U.N. says more than 70,000 have been killed in the conflict.

Since last month, mortar shells have hit previously safe parts of the capital with increasing frequency.

JOHANNESBURG — Nelson Mandela was back in the hospital for the third time in four months Thursday, and the 94-year-old former South African president was reported to be responding well to treatment for a chronic lung infection.

South Africa's presidency said doctors were acting with extreme caution because of the advanced age of the anti-apartheid leader, who has become increasingly frail in recent years.

A military tank shells a neighborhood Thursday in Damascus, Syria.

The near-daily strikes have frightened residents, and many have begun to avoid open areas and put plastic on their windows to help block flying glass from an explosion or shrapnel.

Some shells appear aimed at government targets, such as one of Assad's palaces and the general command of the Syrian army. Others have hit near civilian targets, including the Sheraton Hotel and a soccer stadium, both on the city's west side. Mortar shells also have struck in areas to the east, like the Christian neighborhood of Bab Touma.

Thursday's strike was the deadliest yet.

State TV said 15 people were killed in the strike, but the official news agency, SANA, put the death toll at 10 and said dozens were wounded. It also reported three other mortar strikes nearby.

Mandela in hospital again for lung infection

just before midnight to a hospital in Pretoria, the South African capital. He has been particularly vulnerable to respiratory problems since contracting tuberculosis during his 27-year imprisonment for fighting white racist rule in his country.

“The doctors advise that former President Nelson Mandela is responding positively to the treatment he is undergoing for a recurring lung infection,” the presidency said in a statement. “He remains under treatment and observation in hospital.”

Mandela, who became South Africa's first black president in 1994, is a revered figure in his homeland, which has named buildings and other places after him and uses his image on national bank notes.

“I'm so sorry. I'm sad,” Obed Mokwana, a Johannesburg resident, said after hearing that Mandela was back in the hospital. “I just try to pray all the time. He must come very strong again.”

In December, Mandela spent three weeks in a hospital in Pretoria, where he was treated for a lung infection and had a procedure to remove gallstones.

Earlier this month, he was hospitalized overnight for what authorities said was a successful scheduled medical test.

Presidential spokesman Mac Maharaj, referring to Mandela by his clan name “Madiba,” said the latest stay was not for previously planned treatment.

“No, this wasn't scheduled. As you will appreciate the doctors do work with a great sense of caution when they are treating Madiba and take into account his age,” he said.

“We appeal to the people of South Africa and the world to pray for our beloved Madiba and his family and to keep them in their thoughts” his office quoted him as saying.

Farming

Early identification of new weed species first step in controlling it

In the last several years we have seen Henderson County primarily grow corn and soybeans. The cropping of soybeans and corn on more pasture acreage has made this county one of the largest grain producing counties. At the same time we have seen weed control options limited to one or two modes of action. Some of the same chemicals have been used on corn and soybeans, such as the case with glyphosate. We have always had problem weeds and that will continue in the years to come. It is just that when chemicals and modes of action change, so do the problem weeds. We know that weed expansion rates vary among weed species and due to site-specific conditions. Real examples of site-specific conditions arrive yearly. Resistant water hemp showed up several years ago in the river bottoms in places that had been flooded but had never had water hemp before. It's not always what you are doing on your farm but could be due to farms up stream if you have flood prone ground. Small, newly established populations have been documented to expand at rates of up to 60 percent per year. We do know expansion rates slow as weed populations become large. At the same time however, studies have shown at least 14 species that have averaged a 24 percent expansion rate over a twenty year spread. Larger weed infestations will cost more to control in labor, materials and machinery. This also adds to the cost of management. Over the last several years I have watched farmers discover small outbreaks of weeds and usually receive from 3 to 5 calls per year

on resistant weeds. Sometimes these outbreaks are due to timing of chemical applications. Timing is critical in weed control and I've talked on this before. However sometimes it is a resistant weed. In the past year or two we have documented resistant marestail, water hemp, and Palmer amaranth. This past year we did an extensive study of water hemp and Palmer amaranth and found resistance to both ALS and glyphosate. Both of the areas we found them in were flood prone areas of the county — Green River bottoms, Scuffletown and Alzey. In some cases there were small populations that were not controlled last year and they will be larger next year. Chemical companies know the problem and are scrambling to come up with dual modes of action solutions. We should remember the first step starts on the farm. Identifying early any new problem species and developing a weed control program that will affect different modes of action as we rotate crops is one of the first steps. It seems like only yesterday I heard a farmer say weed control has gotten easier. My comment was "Wait a few years, it will get hard again." That may be just around the corner! My advice for 2013 is know the weeds you are trying to control; otherwise you might just have to get the hoe out and start chopping weeds out of soybeans. Actually that might not be such a bad idea if it is a small infestation!

FSA assisting Risk Management Agency

The Farm Service Agency will again be assisting Risk Management Agency in monitoring crop conditions throughout the growing season. There will also be a combined monitoring effort by FSA and RMA to prevent fraud, waste and abuse in the Federal Crop Insurance Program. FSA will refer all suspected cases of fraud, waste and abuse about Federal Crop Insurance Program to RMA. Producers can also report a suspected case of fraud, waste and abuse to their local County Office or Risk Management Agency. FSA will provide producer information to RMA to assist in claim audits, inspections and quality control reviews.

Conservation deadline approaching

Special to The Gleaner

LEXINGTON – The USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) in Kentucky is encouraging landowners, farmers and producers to visit their local NRCS office now to receive information and apply for conservation technical assistance and possible financial funding opportunities. The application process for NRCS's conservation programs is continuous, but funding selections are made at specific times throughout the year. The Kentucky NRCS second application cutoff period date for consideration for 2013 funds is April 19. Applications received afterward will be held until the next application cutoff period.

NRCS State Conservationist Karen Woodrich announced earlier this year that technical and financial assistance is available to eligible applicants for the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP). EQIP is a conservation program that provides financial and technical assistance to farmers and ranchers who face threats to soil, water, air, and related natural resources on their land. Through EQIP, NRCS develops contracts with agricultural producers to voluntarily implement conservation practices. Persons engaged in livestock or agricultural production and owners of nonindustrial private forestland are eligible for this program. Eligible land includes cropland, pastureland, private non-industrial forestland, and other farm or ranch lands. EQIP offers several National and State Initiatives which include the Mississippi River Basin Healthy Watershed Initiative, Seasonal High Tunnel Initiative, Organic Initiative, On-Farm Energy Initiative, Wildlife Initiative, and Forestry Initiative. Interested land users should visit their local NRCS Office to find out what opportunities are available through each of these EQIP Initiatives. For more information on NRCS, conservation planning and conservation programs visit NRCS on the web at www.ky.nrcs.usda.gov.

Newtown gunman had access to huge weapons cache

By Michael Melia and Ted Shaffrey
Associated Press

NEWTOWN, Conn. — When Adam Lanza walked out of his house for the last time, he left behind firearms and knives and more than 1,600 rounds of ammunition — taking only four guns. They would suffice.

He loaded the weapons into his car, drove to Sandy Hook Elementary School, blasted his way into the building and within five minutes fired off 154 shots with a Bushmaster .223-caliber rifle. Having slaughtered 20 first-graders and six educators, he killed himself with a shot from a Glock handgun. He still had more than 100 rifle bullets at hand.

Warrants released Thursday provide the most insight to date into the world of the 20-year-old gunman, a recluse who played violent video games in a house packed with weaponry that was all too real. The inventory of items found in the spacious, colonial-style home included books on autism, a vast array of weapon paraphernalia and images of what appears to be a dead person covered with plastic and blood.

The weapons used in the shooting had all apparently been purchased by Lanza's mother, Nancy, with whom he lived, said prosecutor Stephen J. Sedensky III, in a statement accompanying the warrants.

She was found dead in her bed; Adam Lanza had shot her the morning of the massacre, Dec. 14. Authorities also found a gun safe in his bedroom and a holiday card from Nancy Lanza containing a check made out to her son for the purchase of yet another firearm.

Connecticut Gov. Dannel P. Malloy expressed incredulity over the access that the troubled young man had to a cache of weapons.

"There are parts of this story that are unfathomable," he said. "How anyone would have maintained that household that way is difficult to understand."

Mark Barden, whose 7-year-old son, Daniel, was killed at Sandy Hook, said he was not surprised by anything revealed Thursday.

"Most of this is pretty high level stuff that we were aware of already and it just reminds me of what happened, that a gunman stormed his way into an elementary school and shot to death 26 people, 20 of which were first-grade boys and girls," Barden said.

The shooting elevated gun safety to the top of President Barack Obama's agenda; at an event in Washington on Thursday, joined by the families of four children killed at Sandy Hook, he urged lawmakers not to get "squishy" in the face of opposition to gun control.

"Shame on us if we've forgotten," Obama said. "I haven't forgotten those kids."

The debate has extended to Newtown, a rural community of 27,000 people in western Connecticut that is also home to the

“That somebody could get 154 shots off in less than five minutes, kill 20 children and six adults, is disturbing.”

Connecticut Gov. Dannel P. Malloy

National Shooting Sports Foundation. A protest and counter-protest were held outside the foundation's offices Thursday.

If it's possible to determine a motive for the massacre, there may be clues in Adam Lanza's journals, which state police seized from the house and turned over to the FBI for analysis. But authorities say that so far no conclusions have been reached. Sedensky estimated that the investigation will be finished this summer.

At the Lanza house, investigators found books about autism and Asperger's syndrome, as well as one with tabbed pages titled "Train Your Brain to Get Happy." Adam Lanza was said to have been diagnosed with Asperger's, an autism-like disorder that is not associated with violence.

But the warrants also reveal an intense interest in weaponry and violence.

A gun locker in the house was open when police arrived in the aftermath of the shootings, and there was no sign it had been broken into.

Investigators found a 7-foot pole with a blade on one side and a spear on another, a metal bayonet, three samurai swords, a .323-caliber bolt-action rifle, a .22-caliber Savage Mark II rifle and a .22-caliber Volcanic starter pistol. There was a military-style uniform in Lanza's bedroom; literature seized from the house included a news article on a 2008 shooting at Northern Illinois University and a National Rifle Association guide to pistol shooting.

News outlets including The Associated Press reported previously that Lanza showed interest in other mass killings. Some, including The Hartford Courant, reported that he had a particular interest in Norwegian mass murderer Anders Behring Breivik, who killed 77 people in twin attacks in 2011 in Norway's worst peacetime massacre.

In a duffel bag, investigators found ear and eye protection, binoculars, numerous paper targets and an NRA certificate that belonged to Adam Lanza. The NRA said Lanza was not a member.

An unnamed person told investigators that Lanza was an avid gamer who played "Call of Duty" and rarely left his home. The affidavit, which is partially blacked out, also has that person saying that Sandy Hook, the school Lanza attended as a child, was his "life."

On the day of the massacre, Lanza took two loaded handguns to the school along with the Bushmaster rifle. A fourth gun, a loaded 12-gauge Saiga shotgun, was found in the passenger compartment of his Honda Civic, along with 70 shotgun rounds.

Lanza went through six 30-round magazines for the Bushmaster, although half of them were not completely empty, and police said he had three other 30-round magazines in addition to one that was in the rifle.

A judge's order to seal the warrants expired on Wednesday, and a Danbury Superior Court judge granted a request by Sedensky to withhold some details. Sedensky asked to redact the name of a witness, saying the person's safety might be jeopardized if the name were disclosed. He also asked that the release not include other information such as telephone numbers, serial numbers on items found and a few paragraphs of an affidavit.

Malloy, a Democrat in his first term as governor, said the fact that Lanza left smaller magazines at the house should boost support for a state ban on high-capacity ammunition magazines.

"That somebody could get 154 shots off in less than five minutes, kill 20 children and six adults, is disturbing," Malloy said.

Connecticut House Minority Leader Lawrence Cafero Jr., a Republican, said he expects the General Assembly will be ready to vote next week, possibly Wednesday, on a package addressing gun control and other issues raised by the shooting.

Associated Press writers John Christoffersen, Dave Collins and Susan Haigh in Hartford and John Christoffersen in New Haven contributed to this report. Melia reported from Hartford.

DONATION from 1A

"We often would take in any stray cats that came along, we'd water and feed them," Jonell Hardison said. "He loved his pets."

Bland Hardison would often take pet food to the local animal shelter, though he sometimes needed a hand lifting it because of his age, she said.

The donations were a much-needed windfall for county-run shelters around the state that often struggle with overcrowding and small budgets.

Rusty Newton, who runs Shelby County's animal shelter, said the money from Hardison would be used to buy new equipment such as carriers used to transport animals for veterinarian visits. The shelter has had a no-kill status for the last four years.

"I was surprised, but at the same time we were thrilled that someone would care enough to leave money for all the shelters," said Newton. The shelter, which houses about 140 dogs and cats and has a $147,000 annual budget, depends on donations from the public, he said.

Even small rural counties with no facility for stray animals received the donation, including Fleming County, which sends its strays to neighboring Lewis County.

"That was a big surprise," said Fleming County Judge-executive Larry Foxworthy. "It's a wonderful gesture that someone would be that caring."

The county's animal control program, which runs on a $42,500 annual budget, will use the money to feed animals kept overnight before they are transported to Lewis County, Foxworthy said.

Hardison worked with a local bank for several years on the details of his donations, which included gifts to The American Cancer Society, the American Heart Association and the Arthritis Foundation, said Kathy Gish with Sacramento Deposit Bank in Calhoun.

He also left $2,590 to each of 235 cemeteries around Kentucky for maintenance and upkeep, Gish said.

million acres but still the fourth highest on record.

Compared with last year, planted soybean acreage intentions are down across all of the Great Plains, with the exception of North Dakota, as drought conditions have persisted. However, increases in planted areas across most of the eastern Corn Belt and parts of the Southeast nearly balance out the plains' declines.

If the estimates come to fruition, the planted soybean areas in New York, North Dakota, and Pennsylvania will be the largest on record.

Iowa soybean acres are expected to rise 1 percent to 9.4 million acres, while Illinois is up 4 percent to 9.4 million. Nebraska is expected to see soybean acres fall about 6 percent to 4.7 million.

Some analysts had anticipated increased planting in both corn and soybeans partly because farmers dedicated fewer acres to the conservation reserve program last year, leaving 2.6 million more acres available for planting.

Darrel Good, an agriculture economics professor at the University of Illinois, said with plenty of land available for planting, the weather now becomes a focal point.

"The attention will focus very quickly on planting weather and thoughts of yield prospects," he said. "The question is what kind of summer we're going to have."

GUNS from 1A

checks and bar high capacity ammunition magazines are in question.

In one statement that typifies moderate Democrats' caution, spokesman Kevin Hall said Virginia Sen. Mark Warner is "still holding conversations with Virginia stakeholders and sorting through issues on background checks" and proposals on assault weapons and magazines.

In stronger language this week, Democratic Sen. Heidi Heitkamp of North Dakota said, "I do not need someone from New York City to tell me how to handle crime in our state. I know that we can go after and prosecute criminals without the need to infringe upon the Second Amendment rights of law-abiding North Dakotans."

Expanding federal background checks to private sales at gun shows and online is the gun-control effort's centerpiece and was the focus of Obama's remarks. The system, designed to block criminals and the mentally disturbed from getting firearms, currently applies only to transactions by licensed gun dealers.

The National Rifle Association opposes the expansion, citing a threat that it could bring federal registries of gun owners, which would be illegal. The NRA says what is needed is better enforcement of the existing system, which it says criminals too easily circumvent.

Democratic sponsors are sure to need 60 votes to prevail — a daunting hurdle since the party has just 53 of the Senate's 100 seats, plus two Democratic-leaning independents. In a sign of potential trouble ahead, six Democrats backed a failed GOP proposal last week that would have required 60 votes for all future bills restricting guns.

"The week after Newtown, we thought it would be a tough road to 60 votes but we'd get there," said Mark Glaze, director of Mayors Against Illegal Guns, a group that Bloomberg helps lead. "Three months after Newtown, it looks like a tough slog but we'll get there."

Exactly how they can achieve that has yet to be demonstrated, with Obama's turn Thursday as arm-twister-in-chief underscoring the political pressure that proponents feel is needed 104 days after the Newtown killings.

"Now's the time to turn that heartbreak into something real," said Obama. While not naming the NRA, he chided opponents for trying to "make all our progress collapse under the weight of fear and frustration, or their assumption is that people will just forget about it."

saying, "We have a politically savvy and a loyal voting bloc, and the politicians know that."

Obama and his backers find themselves in an unusual position — struggling to line up votes for a proposal that polls show the public overwhelmingly supports.

An Associated Press-GfK poll in January found 84 percent support for expanding background checks to include gun show sales. Near-universal checks have received similar or stronger support in other national surveys.

Polls in some Southern states have been comparable. March surveys by the Quinnipiac University Polling Institute found more than 9 in 10 people in Florida and Virginia backing expanded background checks, the same margin found in February by an Elon University Poll in North Carolina.

Analysts say politicians are loath to alienate the people who oppose broader background checks and other gun restrictions because they tend to be dedicated, single-issue voters.

The polling also points to a broader context that politicians are watching: The same Quinnipiac polls that show one-sided support for gun restrictions show people closely divided over whether Obama or the NRA better represents their views on guns.

"They can be for a specific kind of gun control, but they may be suspicious of efforts of other kinds

INDIANAPOLIS— The speed. The quickness. The penchant for causing chaos and mayhem. The ability to take a manageable game and turn it into a blowout in a matter of seconds. Yeah, Dana Altman and his Oregon Ducks know exactly what they're up against with Louisville and that hair-on-fire defense. They've been watching the Oregon football team wreak the same kind of havoc for years now. "It's almost the same situation that our football team runs into when teams are trying to get ready for them. They play so much faster and their team speed is different," Altman said Thursday. And I don't think we can prepare for the speed of Louisville: their quickness, their guard quickness, their overall team speed and the different looks they throw at you. looked every bit the overall top seed in their first two games, routing North Carolina A&T and Colorado State by an average of 28.5 points while forcing 47 turnovers. Both the Aggies and Rams finished with more turnovers than field goals, and Louisville outrebounded Colorado

State — no minor stat against a team that had both the nation's best rebounding margin and the top rebounding tandem in Colton Iverson and Pierce Hornung. The numbers are even scarier in Louisville's current 12-game winning streak. The Cardinals have held their opponents to fewer than 55 points and 38 percent shooting during the run, and forced an average of almost 19 turnovers. Only one opponent, Syracuse on March 2, has gotten within single digits at the final buzzer. "Coach P really gets his teams to play really well around this time of March," point guard Peyton Siva said. "Right now, we're just trying to continue to keep on the roll." While defense is the trademark of any Rick Pitino team, these Cardinals have just about perfected his soul-sucking press. There are so many hands in opponents' faces it looks as if the Cardinals have an extra man or two on the floor. Lanes that were wide-open are suddenly clogged. Open shots simply don't exist. Hits were at a premium in Henderson County's 2-0 victory over Hopkinsville in Thursday's home opener at B.T. Wayne Field. The Colonels (5-2) made the most of their one hit as Justin Cessna broke up a no-hit bid by Hopkinsville pitcher Easton McGee with a run-scoring single in the bottom of the sixth inning.

Sixth-ranked Henderson County was already leading 1-0 off an unearned run when Cessna drove a single between shortstop Tyler Graham and second base to score Colin Hudson from second with an insurance run. "Justin has been struggling a little bit. It was nice to see him get a big hit," Henderson County coach Nathan Isenberg said. The ECU-bound senior entered the game with a .304 batting average, well below the .468 mark he put up last year.

While that was the only hit allowed by McGee, Henderson County starter Daniel Steiner and Colton Jones combined for a two-hit shutout. Steiner, who improved to 2-0, struck out nine and walked three over six innings. Jones pitched a perfect seventh to earn the save.

Steiner, a sophomore lefty, was especially strong early as he recorded seven of his first eight outs by strikeout. Hopkinsville's only two hits were an infield single by speedy Rashad Lewis in the first inning and a single to left by Taylor Saltsman in the fifth that led to the only scoring threat by the 0-5 Tigers. Dylan Austin followed Saltsman's single with a walk. After a sacrifice bunt by Graham, Jack Gardner flew out to center to end the scoring threat.

Henderson County scored an unearned run in the first inning off McGee, who struck out two through six innings. Quinn Thomas reached on an error to lead off the inning and moved to third on a botched pickoff attempt. Colin Hudson's groundout to second drove in Thomas.

The Colonels had 10 flyball outs against McGee, who is a freshman right-hander.

"Our timing was off. We were just a tick late," Isenberg said. "He was deceiving. His delivery was slow but then he was hitting 81 with his fastball. It made it seem faster than it was." Henderson County hosts Castle tonight at 6 p.m. in the opening game of the Mojo Sports Classic. Scott County will face Castle in tonight's second game.

The four-team event will continue on Saturday beginning with Scott County and fifth-ranked Louisville St. Xavier at 10 a.m., followed by No. 22 Union County and Scott County at 12:30 p.m., Henderson County and St. Xavier at 3 and Union County taking on Castle at 5:30.

Lady Cols trounce Muhlenberg Co.

■ McMillan twirls three-hitter, HCHS triumphs 11-1

By Mitchell Stinson
Gleaner correspondent

Katelyn McMillan twirled a three-hitter and her offense provided 13 hits worth of support Thursday, as the Henderson County Lady Colonels rolled to an 11-1 victory over Muhlenberg County at North Field. Drilling a two-out, RBI double to the gap in right-center, Lady Mustangs pitcher Shannon Becklehimer staked herself to a 1-0 lead in the top of the first. After that, it was all Henderson County. "They're a good team but we finally consider ourselves a good team too," said Lady Colonels coach Rick Green. "... We've got to the point in hitting that if a pitcher leaves a pitch waist high, we're going to make them pay." Henderson pitcher McMillan took the first payment, lining a two-run homer over the center field fence in the bottom of the first. About an hour later, catcher Courtney Turner ended the contest with a two-run shot down the left field line. It put the home team up by 10 in the bottom of the sixth and activated the mercy rule. In between those two blasts were three doubles, seven singles and several hard-hit outs.

MIKE LAWRENCE/THE GLEANER

Henderson County's Jaime Raleigh gets a forceout at second base on Muhlenberg County's Sarah Walker in the second inning of Thursday's softball matchup at North Field. Henderson County won 11-1.

"I think we just came out ready to play," said McMillan, who went 3-for-4 on the evening. "We had a couple games canceled and I think we were still sore from that loss." The Lady Colonels dropped to 2-1 after losing an extra-inning affair to Mater Dei on Friday. Now they're 3-1, the same record that Muhlenberg brought into Thursday's contest. Seven starters got hits for the winners and another contributed with a sacrifice fly. Lexi Skelton reached base in each plate appearance, three by hits and one via walk. Her two-run double gave Henderson a 9-1 lead in the bottom of the sixth. Before following Skelton to the plate, Turner had made hard contact in three previous at-bats. One swing went for a double to the left-center wall. In the sixth, she crushed an inside fastball for the first home run of her softball career. It was no fluke — Turner is one of many Lady Colonels who've become more powerful during rigorous off-season conditioning. "I'm hitting harder, stronger," she said. "We hit more this year and we weight-lifted." Henderson County has three home runs through four games and that matches the season total from last year. Henderson County won the junior varsity game 2-1 on a walk-off two-out double by Brea Cooper in the bottom of the fifth. Blake Williams, Andee Powell and Cooper had two hits apiece. Taylor Polivick pitched three shutout innings to take the win and improve the team's record to 3-0. The Lady Colonels play at North Posey, Ind., today beginning with the varsity game at 5:30 p.m.

Hoosiers ousted by Orange 61-50

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON— With its 2-3 zone defense disruptive from start to finish, and Michael Carter-Williams pouring in 24 points, fourth-seeded Syracuse upset No. 1 seed Indiana 61-50 Thursday night to reach the NCAA tournament's East Regional final. Syracuse limited Indiana to its lowest point total of the season, forced 19 turnovers, compiled 10 blocks and held the normally efficient Hoosiers to 33 percent shooting. After getting past season No. 1 Indiana, Syracuse (29-9) will face No. 3 seed Marquette on Saturday.

INDIANAPOLIS— Michigan State coach Tom Izzo and Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski have been teaching young men how to play basketball for decades. On Thursday, they demonstrated why they're so good. They stay loose. Instead of getting tense and out of sorts the day before the Midwest Regional's well-hyped coaching matchup, the pair took turns praising one another's styles, their loyalty to their schools and their teams' penchant for limiting mistakes. Then they turned around and poked fun at themselves and their families.

It was basketball at its most polite. "I consider him a great friend. There's nothing about Tom that I don't think is good. If we lose to them, believe me, I'll hug him and shake his hand, and he'll do the same for me. I like that," said Krzyzewski, the NCAA Division I record-holder with 956 career wins. "I think it's more the way it used to be in coaching, and probably we both have great teachers in that regard and were brought up a certain way where we understand the game is bigger than anybody." Even heading into a game that will put one of these coaches within a victory of yet another Final Four trip. There may not be a more compelling coaching duel in this year's tournament. In 33 seasons at Duke, Krzyzewski has gone to 11 Final Fours, the most among active coaches. He is one of only three coaches in NCAA history to win at least four national championships, two of those coming in Indy. The last time he faced Michigan State, the Blue Devils gave him a 74-69 win that broke Bob Knight's career record for wins. Izzo doesn't mind playing that role. "I'm going to be famous someday because it was our game last year at New York that broke the record, and I guess if you've got to be famous, who cares what the reason is," Izzo said, drawing laughter. "Yet, I look at it too that if we had to lose to somebody that was doing something special, the class and the way he's done things over time, his staff, his recruiting, we've had to recruit against him a few times and it's always fair and up and up. We usually lose, but we're trying to make some progress." Izzo's done a pretty darn good job in his own right. He owns a school-record 439 career wins in 18 seasons at Michigan State and won his only national title in 2000, also in Indy.

Pacers' Granger done for season

INDIANAPOLIS— The Indiana Pacers say Danny Granger will have left knee surgery and miss the rest of the season, leaving them without one of their best offensive players for the postseason. Granger's injury-plagued season will be cut short after just five games. The team said Thursday the decision was made after talks among Granger, the Pacers medical staff and Dr. James Andrews, the noted sports physician. Granger underwent a procedure for patellar tendinosis in October and returned Feb. 25 before he went back to the sideline because of continued pain.

Umenyiora signs with the Falcons

FLOWERY BRANCH, Ga. — Osi Umenyiora is looking for another ring with the Atlanta Falcons. The free-agent defensive end Thursday signed a two-year, $8.5 million contract with Atlanta. Umenyiora, who won two Super Bowl championships in his 10 years with the New York Giants, says the Falcons are “probably the most talented team I’ve seen in my life.” The 31-year-old Umenyiora will replace John Abraham as the team’s pass-rush leader.

Colts get fullback Havili from Eagles

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indianapolis Colts have acquired fullback Stanley Havili in a trade with Philadelphia in exchange for defensive end Clifton Geathers. The 6-foot, 245-pound Havili gives the Colts their first true fullback in years and should help the new offense under first-year coordinator Pep Hamilton. Havili was Philadelphia’s seventh-round draft pick in 2011 and had six rushes for 22 yards and one TD in 15 games with the Eagles.

Sharapova reaches final in Sony Open

MIAMI — Four-time runner-up Maria Sharapova advanced to another Key Biscayne final by beating Jelena Jankovic 6-2, 6-1 on Thursday at the Sony Open. With a victory Saturday, the No. 3-seeded Sharapova would plug one of the few holes in her resume. She completed a career Grand Slam by winning the French Open last year but has never won the Miami tournament. Sharapova's opponent in the final will be the winner of Thursday night's match between five-time champion Serena Williams and defending champ Agnieszka Radwanska.

Gottfried won't talk about UCLA

RALEIGH, N.C. — North Carolina State coach Mark Gottfried says he's committed to the Wolfpack program when asked about the coaching vacancy at UCLA. After Thursday's news conference for junior Lorenzo Brown to declare for the NBA draft, Gottfried said he wouldn't talk about any job “other than the one I have — which is the one I love.” Gottfried spent eight seasons as an assistant at UCLA, including during the Bruins' run to the 1995 NCAA championship.

Ex-Syracuse aide Fine to sue ESPN

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Fired Syracuse University assistant basketball coach Bernie Fine has filed the initial paperwork in a defamation lawsuit against ESPN for reporting sex abuse claims against him. A yearlong federal investigation that followed accusations that Fine abused team ball boys ended with no charges. Fine was Hall of Fame coach Jim Boeheim's assistant for 35 seasons.

Marquette knocks out Miami

■ Buckeyes march on with 73-70 victory over Arizona

Wire reports

Vander Blue's buzzer-beater came at the end of the first half. For a change, Marquette didn't need one at the end of the game. After sweating through a pair of edge-of-your-seat comebacks in the NCAA tournament, Blue and the Golden Eagles figured out how to put one away early, earning Marquette's first trip to the Elite Eight since 2003 with a 71-61 win over Miami on Thursday night. Blue, who spurred the rallies that beat Davidson by one and Butler by two, finished with 14 points. He wasn't Marquette's leading scorer — that was Jamil Wilson with 16 — but it was Blue's offensive and defensive energy that pushed the Golden Eagles to a double-digit lead in the first half, a spread Miami never came close to making up. The third-seeded Golden Eagles (26-8) will face either top-seeded Indiana or No. 4 seed Syracuse in the East Regional final on Saturday, aiming for a spot in the Final Four for the first time since Dwyane Wade took them there a decade ago. The game wasn't hard to decipher. Marquette could shoot; Miami couldn't. The Hurricanes (29-7) had sentiment on their side, returning to the arena where coach Jim Larranaga led mid-major George Mason to the Final Four seven years ago, but they made only 35 percent of their field goals and missed 18 of 26 3-pointers. Marquette, meanwhile, shot 54 percent, a stark turnaround from its 38 percent rate from the first two games in the tournament. Davante Gardner added 14 points, with 12 coming in the second half when the Golden Eagles were comfortably ahead. Shane Larkin scored 14 points to lead the No. 2 seed Hurricanes, whose NCAA run to the round of 16 matched the best in school history. Blue missed his first two shots — pining for a foul after throwing up a clumsy airball on a baseline drive — but he got on the board when he picked off a pass and converted the steal into a one-handed jam to give Marquette an 8-4 lead. That got him going. A running one-hander made it 12-4. Blue and Junior Cadougan forced a steal, getting Larkin to commit his second foul in the process. The next time Blue missed, Trent Lockett was there to dunk the rebound and put the Golden Eagles up by nine. Meanwhile, the Hurricanes couldn't sink a shot, from inside or out. Raphael Akpejiori flung a hook that hit so high off the backboard that it looked better suited for a setup toss in a dunk contest. Miami started 2 for 12, including 0 for 6 from 3-point range, and Larkin's 3-pointer more than 11 minutes into the game was the first Hurricanes field goal scored by anyone other than Kenny Kadji. ■ Ohio State 73, Arizona 70: LaQuinton Ross hit the tiebreaking 3-pointer with 2 seconds to play, and Ohio State advanced to the brink of its second straight Final Four appearance with a 73-70 victory over Arizona on Thursday night in the West Regional semifinals. Ross, the Buckeyes' remarkable reserve, scored 14 of his 17 points in the second half for the second-seeded Buckeyes (29-7),

FGCU's darlings face Gators

■ High-flying Eagles from 'Dunk City' the talk of the tournament

Wire reports

A week ago, Florida Gulf Coast University was just another overlooked No. 15 seed — a longshot at best to nearly everyone eyeballing their NCAA tournament brackets. Now the Eagles are the high-flying show from “Dunk City” in the round of 16, the darlings of the South Regional and a bracket-busting team everybody is talking about even when surrounded by former national champions Michigan, Kansas and Florida. “Things have changed dramatically,” FGCU coach Andy Enfield said. “The way we looked at it, we did make history. ... We feel like we shocked the world,” said Brett Comer, the guard with 22 points and 24 assists in two NCAA games. “Nobody picked us to beat Georgetown, or San Diego State, for sure. We're going to prepare for Florida the same way. We're going to try to win again.” Florida Gulf Coast (26-10) plays the SEC regular-season champion Gators (28-7), the No. 3 seed in the South, on Friday night. The improbable intrastate showdown is magnified even more at Cowboys Stadium, where the court is on a raised stage and below giant high-definition screens that had the players' attention on Thursday. “Even if you make big plays, it's hard to get a good angle on that TV, you have to stand right on the edge (of the court),” Eagles forward Chase Fieler said. “We'll have to run more toward the sideline to see it.” After their two NCAA tournament victories in Philadelphia, the Eagles arrived home early Monday morning. All the players were in back in class a few hours after that, though the atmosphere had certainly changed on the campus with an enrollment of 13,468. “It was a busy week, just with the attention and the media being around. And the students were excited about what's going on and talking to us,” Fieler said. While Florida Gulf Coast was back home getting accolades and trying to prepare among a pep rally-type atmosphere, the Gators spent the entire week in Texas. They stayed in the Lone Star State instead of going back-and-forth after beating Minnesota last Sunday in Austin, about three hours away. Florida, which won consecutive national titles in 2006 and 2007, has been to regional finals each of the last two years. But this is the last chance for seniors Kenny Boynton, Erik Murphy and Mike Rosario to get a championship of their own. ■ Michigan coach John Beilein briefly lost track of how long it's been since the Wolverines reached the round of 16 in the NCAA tournament. Sixteen years, he said. No, 18. Wait. 19. He was right the third time, but here's how to make it a little simpler.

Points uses old putter to take Houston lead

Wire reports

The putter D.A. Points once took from his mother paid off nicely for him Thursday in the Houston Open. Points opened with five straight birdies and wound up with an 8-under 64 on a pleasant morning with only moderate wind at Redstone Golf Club. He had a one-shot lead over Cameron Tringale and John Rollins. Rory McIlroy had to fight hard for a 73. Points first borrowed the Ping Anser from his mother during his junior years in Illinois, and like most golfers, he abandoned it once he stopped making putts. But he recently asked Ping to clean it up for him and add some weight. He also got a putting lesson — no, not from Steve Stricker — and he was on his way. A mild wind gained strength in the afternoon, and Rollins still managed a 65. Angel Cabrera of Argentina, a two-time major champion who lives in Houston, was in the group at 66. Phil Mickelson was at 4 under and right in the mix but wound up at 72. Mickelson played with defending champion Hunter Mahan, who shot a 74. ■ European Tour: Marcel Siem of Germany had two eagles to shoot an 8-under 64 on Thursday and lead by three strokes after the opening round of the Hassan II Trophy.

who rallied from an early 11-point deficit and weathered the sixth-seeded Wildcats' late charge for their 11th consecutive victory since mid-February. Deshaun Thomas scored 20 points for Ohio State, and Aaron Craft added 13 before ceding the Buckeyes' final shot to Ross. Craft hit an awfully similar 3-pointer against Iowa State last Sunday to send the Buckeyes forward. Mark Lyons' acrobatic three-point play for the Wildcats (27-8) had tied it with 21.8 seconds left. Craft dribbled down the clock and gave it to Ross, who coolly drilled his second 3-pointer and set off a wild celebration in the Ohio State section of the Arizona-dominated crowd. On Saturday, Ohio State will face the winner of the late game between underdogs Wichita State and La Salle. As the only top-eight seed left in the West, the Buckeyes will be Atlanta-bound with one more win. Sam Thompson added 11 points for the Buckeyes, who trailed for nearly the entire first half before pushing ahead and nursing a small lead throughout the final minutes. Lyons scored 23 points including his gutsy three-point play for the Wildcats, who rallied from a 10-point deficit in the second half before falling just short of their second NCAA regional final in four years. Solomon Hill added 16 points in his native Los Angeles, but the rest of Arizona combined for just 31 points on 10-for-29 shooting.

Kentucky prepares for Delle Donne and Delaware

By Gary Graves
Associated Press

LEXINGTON — Kentucky's primary goal against Delaware will be like all Blue Hens' opponents: try to keep All-American Elena Delle Donne from taking control of the game. It's not the first time this season the Wildcats have faced one of the sport's best players. Kentucky coach Matthew Mitchell believes his team learned from their experience against the game's most imposing player — 6-foot-8 Brittney Griner — in an 85-51 loss to Baylor. The 6-5 Delle Donne presents a different challenge; she rebounds, is a willing passer and averages 25.8 points — but she can dominate from the perimeter. Delaware's supporting cast also makes it difficult to focus solely on Delle Donne, but having faced Griner and an even more balanced Baylor team, the Wildcats feel prepared for the round of 16 showdown in Bridgeport, Conn. “We believe we're ready,” said Wildcats senior guard A'dia Mathies, coming off a 34-point performance in Tuesday's 84-70 win over Dayton. “We believe we can beat anybody in the nation if we come with our best effort and play how we can play at the top of our level. “We're not really worried about anybody else, we're just focused on ourselves. If we play like Kentucky should play, we should have a great outcome.” Still, Kentucky (29-5) enters the Bridgeport Regional respectful of how Delle Donne makes things go for sixth-seeded Delaware (32-3), winners of 27 straight. Delle Donne originally signed with UConn before abruptly leaving after a short stay to return home to Delaware. She scored 11 of her 33 points from the foul line to rally the Blue Hens past North Carolina 78-69 on Tuesday. She has scored more than 3,000 points in her Delaware career.

be gasping for air by the time he reaches midcourt, the pressure is so suffocating.

The worst part? It's impossible to truly prepare for it, especially during the NCAA tournament's short turnarounds.

"All you really can do is get ready for it, talk about it, know what you're going to have to do against it, have some break presses installed," Oregon forward E.J. Singler said. "That's what we've been doing this past week, really focusing on in breaking the press and being really strong with the ball and limiting our turnovers."

To mimic the smothering effect of Louisville's press, Oregon has been practicing with an extra player on the floor. But unless Usain Bolt dropped by, there's no way the Ducks could duplicate the Cardinals' speed.

"There's not really a lot you can do," Singler said.

The key is getting the ball across half-court. Do that, and the Ducks are confident their offense can wreak some havoc of its own.

They shot 50 percent from 3-point range against Oklahoma State and Saint Louis. Three players — Damyean Dotson, Carlos Emory and Singler — averaged 11 points or better.

"The half-court offense, they move the ball really well," Siva said. "They're shooting lights out — they were 8 for 11 (from 3-point range) against Saint Louis. That's going to pose a matchup problem for anybody. We have to contain the 3-point line, contain the offensive glass and I think we'll be OK."

Force some turnovers, too.

The Ducks had 36 turnovers in their first two NCAA tournament games, three above their season average. Do that against Louisville, and Oregon will be in for a very long evening.

"We've got to try and clean it up a little bit," Altman said. "We're going to make mistakes. I told the guys that. We've just got to play through them. Louisville does a great job of multiplying those mistakes into a number of baskets, and we've got to do a great job of just trying to keep that number down to a manageable level."

Cypriots flood banks after two weeks of closure

By Menelaos Hadjicostis
Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Banks in Cyprus reopened for the first time in nearly two weeks Thursday and prohibited people from withdrawing all their savings and triggering further chaos in the country's financial system.

The limits on transactions, which include caps on withdrawals and money leaving the country, are a first in the 14-year history of the euro.

Across Cyprus, large but orderly lines formed ahead of the opening of banks for six hours from noon, and guards from private security firms reinforced police outside some ATMs and banks in the capital, Nicosia.

People filed calmly into banks across the country once they had opened, and no crowd issues were reported.

The country's president, Nicos Anastasiades, expressed his “warm gratitude and deep appreciation towards the Cypriot people for the maturity and spirit of responsibility they have shown at a critical time for the stability of the Cypriot economy,” a statement from his office said.

In Nicosia, one 70-year-old pensioner who only gave his name as Ioannis arrived at the bank some two hours ahead of the scheduled opening time.

“I had to come this early, I came from my village 20 kilometers away, what do they want me to do, keep coming and going?” he said.

Banks have been shut since March 16 to prevent people draining their accounts as politicians scrambled to come up with a plan to allow Cyprus to qualify for 10 billion euros ($12.9 billion) in bailout loans for its stricken banking sector.

The deal was finally reached in Brussels early

ASSOCIATED PRESS

An employee of the bank talks to the people as they wait outside a branch of Bank of Cyprus before it opened Thursday in Nicosia.

Monday, and imposes severe losses on deposits of over 100,000 euros in the country's two largest banks, Laiki and Bank of Cyprus. Laiki will be broken up, with its good assets being absorbed by Bank of Cyprus. The exact amounts of the losses have not yet been officially announced.

Some individuals and businesses, spotting that Cyprus's economy was in trouble and that a tax on deposits was being discussed, had managed to move their money out Cyprus well before the banks closed their doors last week.

According to European Central Bank figures, deposits in Cyprus's banks slipped 2.2 percent last month, to 46.359 billion euros, the lowest figure since May 2010 and down from a peak of 50.5 billion euros in May 2012. The figure excludes deposits from other banks and the central government.

“I anticipated, not this to happen, but I anticipated issues last year, when Greece had a question of whether it will remain in euro and the consequences of that,” said Athos Angelides, who runs a business importing and distributing salon products. “So luckily we transferred money in the middle of last year over to the UK.”

Although the banks have opened, customers are severely limited in access to their accounts. Capital controls, imposed to prevent worried savers and businesses rushing to withdraw all their money, include limiting cash withdrawals to 300 euros ($383) per day per person and limiting payments abroad to 5,000 euros.

No checks can be cashed, although they can be paid in, and people leaving the country can only take up to 1,000 euros, or the equivalent in foreign currency, with them in cash.

The country's general accounting office said pensions and other social security payments, together with salaries for government employees, will be in bank accounts next Tuesday and Wednesday.

“The Central Bank decided on some limitations, so we are sure that slowly, slowly we are going back to functioning of the banks without serious problems,” said the head of the parliament, Yiannakis Omirou.

“Some problems I'm sure will be created but our people are ready to overcome the difficult moments we are passing.”

The restrictions will be reviewed daily and are initially in place for seven days until next Wednesday.

S&P 500 closes at a record high, beating '07 mark

By Christina Rexrode
Associated Press

NEW YORK — For the second time in less than a month, the American stock market marched past another milestone on its long, turbulent journey back from the Great Recession, toppling another record left over from the days before government bailouts and failing investment banks.

The Standard & Poor's 500 closed at a new high Thursday, three weeks after another popular gauge, the Dow Jones industrial average, obliterated its own closing record.

The reaction on Wall Street was muted — more of a dull buzz than a victory cry. Investors warned clients not to get overly excited.

“Getting back to where we were is an important step,” said Howard Silverblatt, senior index analyst at S&P Dow Jones Indices. But he cautioned in a note to investors: “Markets are volatile, and if you are a long-term investor you should expect declines.”

The S&P rose six points to 1,569, a gain of 0.4 percent, beating by four points its previous record of 1,565.15 set on Oct. 9, 2007. The index is still shy of its all-time trading high of 1,576.

The index has now recovered all of its losses from the recession and the financial crisis that followed. Investors who put their dividends back into the market have done even better. A $10,000 investment in the S&P back in October 2007 would be worth $11,270.

Court sides with EPA in pollution case

A federal appeals court says government regulators can take action when they fear a power company construction project might significantly increase air pollution, without waiting to see if they were right.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency sued DTE Energy in 2010 because the company replaced key boiler parts at its Monroe Unit 2 without installing pollution controls that are required whenever a utility performs a major overhaul. DTE said the project was only routine maintenance.

U.S. District Judge Bernard Friedman threw out the suit, saying EPA went to court too soon.

But the Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned his decision Thursday. In a 2-1 ruling, the court says the law doesn't block EPA from challenging suspected violations of its regulations until long after power plants are modified.

DuPont drops suit over Kevlar name

DuPont Co. has dropped a federal lawsuit accusing sports equipment maker Easton-Bell Sports of misusing the Kevlar trademark in packaging for bicycle tires and locks.

But the fight may not be over. DuPont's filing Thursday dismissing the lawsuit comes two days after a federal judge in California refused to dismiss or transfer to Delaware a lawsuit filed by Easton-Bell. In that lawsuit, company sought a declaration that it is not infringing on DuPont's trademarks.

DuPont filed its complaint in Delaware in January, claiming Easton-Bell's prominent use of the Kevlar trademark on packaging infringed on DuPont's trademark and suggested that DuPont endorses or sponsors the tire and lock products, which it does not.

Scooter ads coming under scrutiny

TV ads show smiling seniors enjoying an “active” lifestyle on a motorized scooter, taking in the sights at the Grand Canyon, fishing on a pier and high-fiving their grandchildren at a baseball game.

The commercials, which promise freedom and independence to people with limited mobility, have driven the nearly

$1 billion U.S. market for power wheelchairs and scooters. But the spots by the industry's two leading companies, The Scooter Store and Hoveround, also have drawn scrutiny from doctors and lawmakers, who say they create the false impression that scooters are a convenient means of transportation rather than a medical necessity.

Members of Congress say the ads lead to hundreds of millions of dollars in unnecessary spending by Medicare, which is only supposed to pay for scooters when seniors are unable to use a cane, walker or regular wheelchair. Government inspectors say up to 80 percent of the scooters and power wheelchairs Medicare buys go to people who don't meet the requirements. And doctors say more than money is at stake: Seniors who use scooters unnecessarily can become sedentary, which can exacerbate obesity and other disorders.

RIM reports gains in fourth quarter

Research In Motion Ltd., once written off as dead amid fierce competition from more modern mobile devices such as the iPhone, surprised Wall Street Thursday by returning to profitability and shipping more BlackBerry 10 phones than expected in the most recent quarter.

It will take several quarters, though, to know whether RIM is on a path toward a successful turnaround. RIM just entered the crucial U.S. market with the new phone last week. And despite selling a million BlackBerry 10 phones in other countries, RIM lost subscribers for the second consecutive quarter.

Court OKs tax on online sellers

New York's highest court ruled Thursday the state can collect sales tax from out-of-state retailers, rejecting claims by Amazon.com and Overstock.com that the tax law violates the U.S. Constitution's Commerce Clause.

The 4-1 ruling of the 2008 amendment meets the U.S. Supreme Court test that the sellers have “a substantial nexus” with the taxing state. Taxes apply when the online retailers generate at least $10,000 in annual sales to New Yorkers from in-state websites that earn commissions by bringing in potential customers through links to the big retailers.

Advice

Sexually active teen contemplates telling parents

Dear Amy: I am a 17-year-old girl in high school. I have a loving boyfriend of nine months, and we have a safe and healthy sexual relationship. His parents know and accept this. I have been debating whether to tell my parents. They have expressed that they do not support premarital sex, and they would force me to stop seeing my boyfriend. I love my boyfriend, but I also want to respect my parents' wishes and honor their trust. Is it better to keep mum, since we understand the implications and consequences of sex, or should I be honest despite my parents' potential reaction? — Torn

Downloading patient forms can save time

Dear Heloise: A lot of doctor's offices have websites, and many now put patient forms on them that can be printed out before the appointment. This helps, especially if you are a new patient and are seeing a doctor for the first time. It saves a lot of time. My veterinary clinic even does this. — Still Learning

Dear Heloise: My family visits many touristy sites while vacationing, and I often get the pictures confused when I get back home. Now I write the location on a piece of paper and take a picture of this first, then the pictures. If we move on, I write down the next location and snap another picture. Now I know where each picture was taken. All I have to do is follow the order. — Trish in Indiana

Dear Torn: I applaud you for being safe and healthy in your sexual life, but part of the whole "health" equation is to live a balanced, honest, integrated life, in which you are not lying to the people who raised you. If your boyfriend's parents know about this, then that tells me that you two are willing to be open and honest — but only with people who will let you do what you want to do. If you believe that your folks will throw you out of the house or disown you, then you should not risk your own safety. But what if you tell them and they simply insist that you not be sexually active while you live at home? Are you willing to do as they say? Are you willing to risk disappointing them? You say that you understand the implications and complications of having sex — that is a good awareness to have — but one complication is the one you are facing now:

Through Jesus' death, we gained eternal life

Dear Rev. Graham: Why do you Christians make such a big deal of Jesus' death? After all, throughout history lots of famous people (like Socrates) have been put to death for their beliefs. What makes Jesus so special? — D. McN.

Dear D.: Today, Christians throughout the world will be remembering the death of Jesus Christ on a Roman cross almost 2,000 years ago. This day is often called "Good Friday," and it recounts Jesus' betrayal, arrest, trial and crucifixion. Isn't it a contradiction to call such a tragic series of events "Good Friday"? In some ways it is, because what took place then wasn't only cruel but unjust, for Jesus was innocent of the charges brought against Him. In fact, Pontius Pilate, the Roman governor, repeatedly declared, "I find no basis for a charge against him" (John 19:4). And yet Pilate gave in to the pressure of the crowd and ordered Him put to death. But what took place that day was truly good, because it was the most important event in human history (along with Jesus' resurrection). The reason is because the realization that you and your parents have different values. Some parents want to declare their non-negotiables but don't really want to have to act on them. You might be able to feel them out by asking them again to state their views on this, without disclosing your own choice.

by His death Jesus paid the price for our sins. He was without sin, but on the cross all our sins were placed on Him, and He died in our place. As the Bible says, "In him we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins" (Ephesians 1:7). As you've said, history records the deaths of many great men and women. But only Christ's death offers us the hope of forgiveness and eternal life. On this holy day, take time to reflect on Christ's death for you — and then respond by giving your life to Him. The Bible says, "But God demonstrates his own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8).

Man with herpes must be honest with potential partners

Dear Dr. Roach: My 20-year-old son is intelligent, handsome and popular. However, he has just confided in me that he has contracted herpes. He and I are devastated, since we understand that he will have it forever. I'm worried about the effects on his self-esteem. He wants to be truthful with women, so he feels most of his relationships are over. He feels a future with marriage and children is now out of the question. He takes college classes, has a successful music business and does not do drugs or drink alcohol. Please explain what he is up against, and advise. — T.F.

Dear T.F.: Genital herpes simplex, HSV-2, is extremely common — about 1 adult in 6 in the U.S., 1 in 11 in Canada, has HSV-2. Only about 20 percent of them know they have it. He is absolutely right, and should be commended for his decision to be truthful with potential partners.

Condoms can reduce the risk of transmission. Medications like valacyclovir can reduce outbreaks. And although some women may lose interest in him once they know, I am convinced that there will be someone more concerned with who he is than with what he has. Self-esteem is always an issue when one gets a new medical condition. Having family to talk to is very important — it's much harder alone. The booklet on herpes and genital warts explains these two common infections in detail. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Roach — No. 1202, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Can. with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow 4-6 weeks for delivery. Dear Dr. Roach: I have a bottle of Regular Strength Mylanta original classic flavor, with an expiration date of January 2012. I have heard from several different knowledgeable persons that medications (prescription and over-the-counter) could be used one and two years after their expiration dates. What is your opinion on this subject? — S.R.

Dear S.R.: There's little written about safety of medicine beyond their expiration dates, and what there is suggests that the medicines are likely to safe but perhaps a bit less effective after they expire. The one exception is the antibiotic tetracycline, which can be dangerous after it expires. I personally wouldn't take any medication more than a year after it expired.

Horoscope

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (March 29). There's much to celebrate, including your thriving health and a love most fulfilling. Tread carefully in your professional decisions over the next three weeks because they will have long-term ramifications. The end of April brings a bonus. May puts a creative spin on your lifestyle. Wedding bells ring in June. Capricorn and Pisces people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 15, 2, 39, 49 and 6

ARIES (March 21-April 19). If you were on a top-secret mission, would you tell anyone? Could you keep it from even your nearest and dearest? Today your discretion will be tested and trusted.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Some have commented — in wondrous, complimentary tones — that they don't know how anyone can do what you do. And yet, you still aspire to so much more. You'll find their support motivating.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Relationships have just the right amount of tension to make them exciting — maybe even electrifying. Bonus: A lull in your work scene allows you to focus on your personal life.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). This is no time to let the committee decide what you or anyone else will do next. An individual with experience, ideas and a defined style will lead the way to success. It's likely that leader is you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Proper attention to detail makes your work remarkable, your friendships fun and your love connections tight. However, focusing too small has the opposite effect. Ride the middle ground.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). If you continue to take on work that is below your abilities, you'll stagnate. But right now, the easy work will suit your life just fine. It gives you a chance to focus on other things.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). One way to never be disappointed again is to stop expecting things. Unfortunately, that's also a way to make sure the people you know behave according to the lowest belief of their abilities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Arrive early. It's amazing what a 15-minute head start will do for your confidence. You'll feel like you're on the inside — up to speed and ready for whatever develops.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You're ready to step up your game, and the opportunity comes this afternoon. Your reputation for excellence exists in part because you show enthusiasm for what you do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Passion is self-serving by nature. But the outcroppings of passion often help many people. By yielding to desire, you put energy and excitement into an otherwise dull scene.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Working alone will put you in a down position. You will struggle to keep up with those who share ideas. By inviting more minds to collaborate on your work, you'll quickly refine, simplify and improve it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You're up for a search, and you have a talent for this. You'll have to sift through a lot of muck in order to get to the good stuff, and this makes the treasure you find even more valuable.

FARMING, TOO

Record crop insurance payout stirs subsidy debate

By David Pitt
Associated Press

DES MOINES, Iowa — Farmers will be paid a record $16 billion in crop insurance claims for 2012 because of the widespread drought, a staggering amount that has critics calling for changes to what they say is an inefficient taxpayer subsidy the government cannot afford.

While farmers buy crop insurance from private companies, the federal government subsidizes their premiums and picks up the tab for losses over a certain amount. One analyst estimates the federal tab for 2012 will come to about $11 billion.

It is the second year in a row U.S. farmers have received record crop insurance payments. Flooding and drought in 2011 was followed by an even worse drought last year. The $16 billion in payments also comes as lawmakers working on a new farm bill have been considering a shift from disaster relief to crop insurance as a better way of protecting farmers from natural disasters.

Farmers say they must have some kind of protection or a year like the past two could put them out of business.

Ben Steffen, who has crops and livestock near Humboldt, Neb., said he had insurance to cover three-fourths of his losses last year when drought took about a third of his corn and soybeans and two-fifths of his hay. Farmers can buy insurance that covers from 50 percent to 85 percent of the revenue they would have earned and pay premiums based on their coverage.

"It's not a money-making proposition," he said. "It's a way to keep you from getting buried by a disaster."

The most recent report from the Federal Crop

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Farmer Steve Henry looks at a patch of drought-starved corn in Arapahoe, Neb., last September. Farmers across the nation will be paid a record $16 billion in crop insurance claims for 2012 because of the widespread drought.

Insurance Corp., released Monday, put the total payout so far at $15.91 billion, but some claims for 2012 are still pending. Even so, last year's loss represents at least a 47 percent increase from the $10.8 billion record loss in 2011.

Taxpayers will pick up most of the cost. The program run by the Risk Management Agency in the U.S. Department of Agriculture is a three-way venture in which insurance companies sell farmers policies to cover crop losses. The government subsidizes the program by paying about 62 percent of the cost of insurance premiums and farmers pay about 38 percent.

When losses exceed premiums, the government pick up most of that cost, too, said Bruce Babcock, an agricultural economist at Iowa State University. He estimated that between premium subsidies, crop loss payments and administrative costs, U.S. taxpayers will end up paying about $11 billion for 2012. That's too much, he said.

"I believe farmers need the opportunities to have all the tools they could possibly use to manage their risks," Babcock said. "I just don't think they need to be bribed to do so with such high degree of subsidies."

Some agriculture economists think the federal government should set up an emergency fund that sets aside a certain amount of money, perhaps $3 billion a year, to cover unusual disasters.

But crop insurers say their program is better because approval of emergency aid isn't always certain and crop insurance pays faster. That "stabilizes the supply chain quite a bit" because banks and other companies know farmers will be able to make loan payments and pay their bills even in bad years, said Tom Zacharias, president of National Crop Insurance Services, a nonprofit trade group for insurers that sell to farmers.

Hoosier farmer mixes crops in nod to folklore, not science

By Frank Gray
Associated Press

CHURUBUSCO, Ind. — It has been years since Chuck Zumbrun, who farms 1,200 acres near Churubusco, got the odd piece of advice from one of his father's friends, a man he described as an old hillbilly farmer.

Plant your beans, corn and squash together, like the Indians always did, the man said, and you'll get better yields.

Such folksy advice, it seems, doesn't carry a lot of weight in the world of American agriculture — where universities and corporations have spent decades designing high-yield and disease-resistant hybrids.

Science always trumps folklore.

But there are people who suspect there might be something to the old ways: That different plants do different things to the soil and can actually benefit each other. Among them is Bryan Granshaw, an Australian sugar cane grower who received a Nuffield Foundation scholarship to travel around the world and investigate alternative farming methods.

One of the people he visited last week was Zumbrun because he has experimented with the concept as well.

Zumbrun acknowledges that some people view mixing crops as sort of a crackpot approach.

"You can read a lot about this online, and it's weird, hippy organic types," Zumbrun said. "We real farmers don't listen to that," he said, referring to the mainstream reaction.

New ideas in any field often bring that kind of reaction. No-till farming, for example, which proponents say reduces erosion and improves the fertility of soil, was a hard sell years back. Zumbrun says even his father looked askance at the no-till concept, saying it was used by farmers who wanted to fish, who were too lazy to properly take care of their fields.

But Zumbrun is willing to at least ponder new ideas. Last summer, he planted 35 acres of corn, and when it was about a foot tall, he spread clover seed on the field.

The results were good. In the end, Zumbrun had yields of about 145 bushels per acre, while the county average was 90 bushels, in part due to the drought that lasted for much of the summer.

Over the winter, the field had clover cover.

Ballpark to debut urinal 'gaming system'

ALLENTOWN, Pa. — Talk about streaming media: The Philadelphia Phillies' top minor league affiliate is set to debut what it calls a "urinal gaming system" at its ballpark in Allentown.

The Lehigh Valley IronPigs tapped a British company to install the system in men's restrooms at Coca-Cola Park.

It consists of a video display mounted above each urinal. When a fan approaches, the video console will sense his presence and switch into gaming mode. The guy aims left or right to control the play on the screen.

The team said Tuesday that Coca-Cola Park will be the first sports venue in the world to feature the gaming system. It'll be ready by opening day next week.

Georgia woman's camera washes ashore in Taiwan

NEWNAN, Ga. — A Georgia woman has been reunited with her camera and photos after the camera she lost during a 2007 trip to Hawaii washed ashore in Taiwan.

Lindsay Scallan says she was on a scuba diving trip when she lost her camera during a night dive.

Scallan tells WGCL-TV she recently got a Facebook message from a high school friend saying his wife found an article on a Hawaiian television station's website about a lost camera. Scallan says a China Airlines employee found the camera and says all the images were still on the memory card.

The airline has offered to pay for Scallan to travel to Taiwan to retrieve her camera and meet the man who found it.

Three accused of smoking pot in police parking lot

TOTOWA, N.J. — State troopers in northern New Jersey didn't have to go far to make a pot bust. They didn't even have to get in their cruisers.

Police say they caught three men lighting up in a car in the parking lot of the barracks in Totowa.

What gave the men away? Police say a trooper setting out for night patrol caught a whiff of marijuana.

Today in history

The Associated Press

Today is Good Friday, March 29, the 88th day of 2013. There are 277 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On March 29, 1973, the last United States combat troops left South Vietnam, ending America's direct military involvement in the Vietnam War. In an address to the nation, President Richard Nixon declared, "For the first time in 12 years, no American military forces are in Vietnam."

On this date:

In 1812, the first White House wedding took place as Lucy Payne Washington, the sister of First Lady Dolley Madison, married Supreme Court Justice Thomas Todd.

In 1912, British explorer Robert Falcon Scott, his doomed expedition stranded in an Antarctic blizzard after failing to be the first to reach the South Pole, wrote the last words of his journal: "For Gods sake look after our people."

In 1943, World War II rationing of meat, fats and cheese began.

In 1962, Jack Paar hosted NBC's "Tonight" show for the final time, although the network aired a repeat the following night. (Johnny Carson debuted as host the following October.)

In 1971, Army Lt. William L. Calley Jr. was convicted of murdering 22 Vietnamese civilians in the My Lai (mee ly) massacre. (Calley ended up serving three years under house arrest.) A jury in Los Angeles recommended the death penalty for Charles Manson and three female followers for the 1969 Tate-La Bianca murders. (The sentences were later commuted.)

Ten years ago: Michelle Kwan became only the third American to win five World Figure Skating Championships, after Dick Button and Carol Heiss, at the competition in Washington D.C.

One year ago: A divided House approved a $3.6 trillion Republican budget recasting Medicare and imposing sweeping cuts in domestic programs. Stanford routed Minnesota 75-51 to win the NIT title.

THINK ABOUT IT

"Tolerance always has limits — it cannot tolerate what is itself actively intolerant."
— Sidney Hook, American philosopher and author (1902-1989).

BEST BETS

7 p.m. on 25
Happy Endings

In the first of two new episodes marking the sitcom's Friday debut, Brad (Damon Wayans Jr.) calls on his friends and his own business skills to keep Chuckles and Huggs from closing. Penny and Max (Casey Wilson, Adam Pally) use a black-market cough medicine to help them sleep so they'll quit texting their respective boyfriends. David Alan Grier guest stars in "In the Heat of the Noche."

7 p.m. on 14
Fashion Star

Summer is the theme of this new episode, as the designers are assigned to create a hot-weather item — pool party or tropical vacation attire or something suitable for a summer day in the city. They're required to work in teams, which has some of them hot under the collar. In the end, one contestant becomes the first to make a sale to all three buyers in "It's Getting Hot in Here."

7 p.m. on 7
Nikita

Nikita (Maggie Q) wants Division to eliminate the president of Chad (Jonathan Adams) during a visit to Paris, but Alex (Lyndsy Fone-seca) refuses to take part and recruits Birkoff (Aaron Stanford) to dig up dirt on Danforth (Richard T. Jones). That digging turns up a secret that could destroy Division in the new episode "Inevitability." Shane West also stars.

Jessica Lucas

7 p.m. on 13
The Gospel of Judas: Revealed

Judas Iscariot's name has been synonymous with treachery for centuries, but this new special revisits an ancient gospel, found in Egypt and hidden for nearly 2,000 years, that tells a different story. It portrays this villain as a hero. A team of biblical detectives sets out to determine whether this Gospel of Judas is a fake before it crumbles into dust.

8 p.m. on 7
Cult

Skye (Jessica Lucas) suffers a severe reaction to the drug she was given at the "Cult" fan party. Detective Sakelik (Aisha Hinds) shows up at the hospital but refuses to help. Under pressure to find a sample of the drug, Jeff (Matt Davis) suspects she may be hiding it at her place. Skye hallucinates Billy, Kelly and her father (Robert Knep- per, Alona Tal, Obba Babatundé) urging her to call off her investigation in the new episode "The Good Fight."

8 p.m. on 9
American Masters

The new episode "Philip Roth: Unmasked" explores the life of the Pulitzer Prize- and National Book Award-winning novelist who is often referred to as the greatest living American writer. In candid interviews, Roth discusses intimate aspects of his life and art as he has never done before: his distinctly unlitary upbringing in Newark, N.J., his writing process, his first marriage and the inspiration behind his most famous novels.

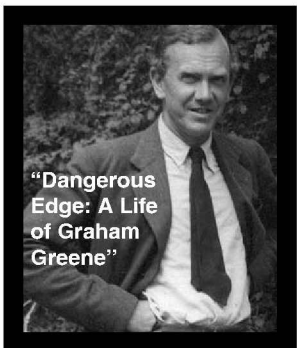

8 p.m. on 10
Tanked

Wayde and Brett have two ambitious jobs in the new episode "Learn to Love or Love to Learn": building an elaborate aquarium to be filled with lionfish at St. Leo University in Florida, whose mascot is the lion, and creating a slot machine-themed tank for a Las Vegas wedding chapel. The latter project has Heather and Agnes putting pressure on Wayde for a wedding vow renewal, which he wants to do; the trick will be finding the time.

8:01 p.m. on 25
Shark Tank

Don't you hate it when things slip between the seat and the center console in your car? Two entrepreneurs from Los Angeles hope to solve the "commuter triangle" with a device that keeps objects from falling into it, and they hope the Sharks will invest in it. Also in this new episode, a teenager pitches her line of sugar scrubs, and a Massachusetts man demonstrates his shrink-wrap gift bags.

9 p.m. on 10
Tanked

New episodes resume with "Pranks and Dranks," which finds Wayde and Brett summoned to Los Angeles to create a custom aquarium for Jeff Tremaine of "Jackass" fame. Later, they're off to the Tropical Smoothie Cafe in Florida, whose owner wants a large aquarium modeled on a smoothie cup.

9 p.m. on 13
Frasier

Frasier and Roz (Kelsey Grammer, Peri Gilpin) are looking forward to some fun at a broadcasters convention that's known for its party and pairing-up atmosphere. But the cancellation of Frasier's room reservation, forcing him to room with Roz, cramps their style. At least it gives them an opportunity to get to know each other better; it turns out they have more in common than they thought. Martin (John Mahoney) is hired by Donny (Saul Rubinek) to stake out the home of a man suspected of cheating on his wife, but an unexpected visit from Niles (David Hyde Pierce) blows his cover.

Philip Roth

2:30 a.m. on 9
Dangerous Edge: A Life of Graham Greene

British actor Derek Jacobi narrates this portrait of author Graham Greene, a British spy, doubting Catholic and manic-depressive whose critically acclaimed best-sellers include "The Quiet American," "Brighton Rock," "The End of the Affair" and "The Third Man." The documentary weaves Greene's novels and movies into the story of his life and reveals an extraordinary man who traveled the globe to escape boredom. Bill Nighy provides Greene's voice.
